E&I SIGNS MULTIPLE AWARD FOR ERP SOLUTIONS WITH MYTHICS FOR ORACLE, UNIT4, AND WORKDAY Cooperative contracts deliver significant benefits and cost savings to E&I members on enterprise resource planning software, systems, and services

JERICHO, N.Y. – E&I Cooperative Services (E&I), the nation's only member-owned non-profit purchasing cooperative solely serving the needs of education, recently announced new competitively-solicited agreements with Mythics for Oracle, Unit4, and Workday, three of the leading providers of enterprise resource planning (ERP) software, systems, and services to educational institutions nationwide.

Through these fully cloud-native, software-as-a-service (SaaS) solutions custom-built for education, E&I members now have continuous, secure access to student, financial, and human resources (HR) data on cloud-based systems that streamline processes and ensure transparency throughout the institution.

"Cloud ERP solutions empower E&I members to be more efficient and effective in their most crucial administrative operations," said Keith Fowlkes, Vice President, Technology Category at E&I. "We are proud to deliver the best cloud-native ERP solutions from providers with proven track records."

Oracle's leading-edge cloud solutions for higher education and K-12—with implementation and integration services through Mythics, Oracle's premier partner—provide continuous, secure access to student, financial, and HR data on a cloud-based system that streamlines processes and ensures transparency throughout the institution.

Unit4's globally-established integrated solutions for higher education enable back-office and student systems to be managed as one cohesive entity. The company's multi-tenant SaaS solutions are highly scalable, offering mobile-enabled tools, dashboards, and interfaces for ease-of-use and accessibility anytime, anywhere.

Workday's groundbreaking single system is comprised of flexible, intuitive applications that integrate operations across the institution. This multi-tenant SaaS solution for higher education delivers built-in business intelligence, diverse organizational structures with modeling capabilities, and more than 550 optimized business processes.

"These three new contracts provide our members with greater flexibility and choice among the top cloud-native ERP solutions in the industry, and enable members to enjoy significant savings on the software and services they rely on every day," said Gary D. Link, Chief Business Development Officer at E&I.
