

University Sleep Products is proud to be a sustainably responsible corporate citizen.

As a US manufacturer, the company has a very low carbon footprint, due to most materials being made in the United States – in fact, most are from locally-owned businesses. University Sleep also uses common carriers to deliver all mattresses and can ship multiple mattresses in one box truck.

In the event an institution needs old mattresses removed and hauled away, University Sleep prefers to donate them to a local charity. If this is not possible, the company will take the mattresses to a recycling center.
